Course Information

Course Content

This course introduces practical techniques and hand signals to assist drivers with manoeuvres and aims to raise awareness of the dangers caused when large vehicles reverse. Learners will also be trained in the necessary skills to assist other drivers and banksman.

By the end of the course, learners should be able to:

- Ensure the safe passage of reversing vehicles in confined spaces
- Identify areas of danger within the site
- Demonstrate HSE's recommended code of signals
- Guide large goods vehicles, both rigid and articulated, using the above code of signals to HSE Guide Notes HSG136 standard

Learner Numbers

The maximum number of learners for this course is 10.

Additional Information

All learners should be familiar with the latest edition of The Highway Code and should wear suitable clothing, bearing in mind that the practical aspects of this course will be taught outdoors.

A good-sized area of the yard, that is not in use, must be made available to conduct the training to ensure trainer and learner safety. This must not involve using a public road.

A vehicle must also be supplied for use during training. We recommend that the type of vehicle supplied is similar to the type the yard is usually in receipt of, but if this is not possible a car can be used as long as the back windows are covered to get a realistic view of bringing a vehicle in safely.

Assessment

Learners' knowledge is assessed at the end of the course through a multiple-choice examination paper. The course is pass / fail.

Certification

Those who successfully complete the course will receive a Sorted Training Vehicle Banksman / Traffic Marshal certificate valid for 3 years.

CITB Grant Levy
